

SUMMARIES

УДК 658.5:004

T. Bochulia

ORGANIZATION OF INFORMATION COMPONENT OF MANAGEMENT PROCESS IN THE ECONOMIC SPACE

In the article considered organization of information system in contour of intellectual and technological platform, adapted to the requirements of the reformed society and economy, which is configured for functioning in the conditions of high risk and flexible to internal and external changes.

Taking into account exceptional importance of information strategy that alters role function of information product, carried out a qualitative assessment of the information in the time dynamics.

When designing information provision on the forms of accounting information, shows the levels of information awareness, in which frameworks is balanced completeness of requests for information, that allows harmonized information processes and, as a result, financial and economic condition of the economic subject.

Hypothesis of performance of information system is derived from the assertion regarding satisfaction of financial and business needs that expressed in terms of information totals, which available for processing. The determining factor is the period of time in which possible to obtain the greatest positive effect. Proposed own vision of information interpretation of decision through attracting of information at the time of the formation and choice of management alternatives.

The information flows in financial and economic structure of business suggested functioning mechanism of information system in planning the aspect of objectivity final result and the consequence of management decision.

In the future the author considers perspective to extend research and improve the methodological approaches to determining the value of information and reduce the costs associated with service of information system.